

Administracion del Tesoro
publico en Puno.

A 20. de Mayo de 1826.

A los Ss. Administradores de la ^a Tesor. gral de Lima.
Ss. Administradores.

En contestacion de la apreciable nota de
VV. fha 12. x Abril pp. tenemos el honor de hacerles presente: que suponemos sean para el Biennio entrante las catorce resmas de papel sellado que VV. se sirven avisar nos
se hallan proccimos à marchar; pues qf. con
respecto al biennio qf. va determinando, ya tenemos habilitado el papel suficiente, segun documentalmente indicamos a VV. en nuestra nota de 21. de Febrero ultimo, a que nos referimos en lo demas.

Dios que à VV.

Victor del Oliva

M. Linares

O.X. 144-140

6067

MH-06147
CAJ. 54
DOX. 501
FOL. 1

42.02.02.02.02.02

Publica en
Comunicação

Am 26. Sept. 1801. In der Stadt. 22. 11.

1.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 2.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 3.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 4.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 5.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 6.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 7.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 8.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 9.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de
 10.º De la forma de la casa, que sea de

0. 5. 144-140

1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold air.

It was a sharp contrast to the warm interior of the vehicle.

The snow was falling in thick, soft flakes, creating a hazy atmosphere. I had heard that the weather would be perfect for the trip, but this was certainly not what I expected. The car's windows were fogged up from the humidity inside, and I had to roll them down to see the road ahead. The driver, a young man with a friendly smile, assured me that he had driven through worse weather. He told me that the snow was not too deep and that the roads were well-maintained. I felt a bit better, but the cold was still a challenge. I wrapped my coat tighter around me and looked out at the white landscape. The trees were covered in a thick layer of snow, and the ground was a smooth, white expanse. It was beautiful, but also a bit intimidating. I had never driven in the snow before, and I was a bit nervous. The driver noticed my hesitation and gave me some basic instructions. He told me to keep a steady speed and to avoid sudden movements. He also reminded me to use the car's winter tires, which were a great help. As we drove, I began to relax. The snow was not as bad as I had imagined, and the driver was a professional. We arrived at our destination without any major incidents. The snow had melted a bit by then, and the roads were clear. I had a great time, and I was grateful for the driver's help. The snow was a beautiful sight, and it made the trip a memorable one.

2. The second thing I noticed was the smell of pine trees. It was a fresh, crisp scent that filled the air. I had never smelled anything like it before. The driver told me that it was the scent of the evergreen trees that were common in the area. He said that it was a good sign that the weather was clearing up. I felt a bit better, and I was ready to continue the trip. The driver was a professional, and he knew what he was doing. He had driven through the snow many times before, and he was confident. I was a bit nervous, but he was reassuring. He told me that the snow was not too deep and that the roads were well-maintained. I felt a bit better, and I was ready to continue the trip.

3. The third thing I noticed was the sound of the snow falling. It was a soft, gentle sound that was almost soothing. I had never heard anything like it before. The driver told me that it was the sound of the snow falling on the ground. He said that it was a good sign that the weather was clearing up. I felt a bit better, and I was ready to continue the trip. The driver was a professional, and he knew what he was doing. He had driven through the snow many times before, and he was confident. I was a bit nervous, but he was reassuring. He told me that the snow was not too deep and that the roads were well-maintained. I felt a bit better, and I was ready to continue the trip.

